

Dr. Hamed Ghazali

Dr. Ghazali is currently working as the director of the Houston Quran Academy. He is also a consultant for several Islamic schools. He also works as a professor with Alhuda University in Houston, Texas. He serves as the chairman of MAS Council of Islamic Schools (MASCIS). He has published several papers and articles on Islamic education. Dr. Ghazali is an expert on K-12 school accreditation. He helped several Islamic schools get accredited. Dr. Ghazali has memorized the entire Quran and did extensive research on it and is in the process of publishing this research. The first book in a series of books titled “The Companions: A Guide to the Understanding of the Holy Quran” is already available. He also served as the principal of the Islamic School of Greater Kansas City for ten years, along with serving as an Imam in Kansas and Missouri for 20 years. He also served as the superintendent of several Islamic schools in Texas, Oklahoma, Georgia, and New York. Dr. Ghazali also served as the vice president of the Islamic Society of North America. Dr. Ghazali has five children; all of them were born in the United States. He managed to raise all of them in an Islamic environment. Dr. Ghazali has a Bachelor’s degree in Engineering from Egypt, a Master’s Degree in Engineering from the University of Kansas, and a Ph.D. degree in Education from Kansas State University.

Dr. Ghazali has a vast experience as an educator. He worked as a teacher at the University of Suez Canal in Egypt for 4 years, and taught at Kanas State University as teaching assistant. He also taught middle-school courses in science and other Islamic subjects while working as a principal in Kansas City. He is still teaching at Alhuda University.

After working as a principal for an Advanc-ED private school for 10 years in Kansas City, he moved to Houston and worked as a superintendent for several private schools in Texas. During this time, he developed an extensive experience in the field of school development and supervision. Dr. Ghazali is also the founder and director of HQ Academy, a private school in Houston that achieved its Advanc-ED accreditation in its second year of operation. Dr. Ghazali has developed a unique and special data-driven system for the schools he supervised. HQ Academy is the place where his pilot program is being implemented. Through the implementation of this program, HQ Academy has been ranked in the top 2.7 percentiles in the nation in its IOWA standardized test. The average for its STAAR Test, which is the state standardized test in Texas was 99% passing rate compared to 70% passing rate for the State of Texas.

Dr. Ghazali developed unique approach to systemization of school processes. His work has resulted in consistent increase in the standardized test scores of these schools.

Dr. Ghazali is also one of the founders of Alhuda University, an Islamic university located in Houston that is offering now a master’s degree in Islamic education for teachers who are teaching in Islamic schools.
